As we look at these two weeks of time spent with Jesus and His apostles, it could be easy to overlook some of the simple things that prove their humanity. The forgetting of the bread, the arguing over who would be first, the complete misunderstanding of deep, theological teaching. These are all pieces of us revealed in the greatest of Jesus' followers. As we continue our time of travel with them, keep your eyes and ears open to see their humanity and notice the way that Jesus deals with them.

THEN...

Take that knowledge that you have gained and realize that your Heavenly Father is still dealing with you in much the same way. On those days when you are forgetful and influenced by the world around you -- remember His patience and His warnings. On those days when your ego seems to take over and you find selfishness to be your aim -- remember His kindness and compassion for others. And on those days when you seem to be completely lost in the woods with no hope of escape -- look up and remember His life, death, burial, and resurrection and know that you have a purpose given to you by the Creator of this world.
