Have you ever had that moment where you felt called out? It can happen in the midst of a conversation where you feel that the person who is speaking about 'something that happened' is outlining you. It might happen in the middle of a business meeting where a supervisor says "For example, we have an employee here who does not turn in their paperwork on time" and you know for a fact they are aiming that comment at you? Maybe it is in the middle of a sermon when you realize the material that is being presented from a particular part of scripture fits your life and circumstances perfectly?

The two lessons today are lessons that I believe call me out more than any two lessons I have presented. In the AM worship, we will be looking at the idea of what it means to stand in the gap from Ezekiel 22:29-31. There is a challenge presented there that calls me out of my comfort zone and into a position that will undoubtedly lead me closer to Christ. In the afternoon worship time, we will look at humility. There is a major struggle that I have had personally with making sure I am humble and not self-loathing or self-pitying. These are very real challenges and I am anxious to share these studies with you.

Pray for all of us today as we study together.
