From our family to yours, we wish you a happy holiday season filled with all good things brought to us by the Father of lights. (James 1:17) There are so many things that we are thankful for: family, friends, our church family, health, ability to provide, and many other things that are blessings in our lives.

With that being said, I also want to recognize the fact that the holiday season is difficult for many people. For some, it is the first holiday without a loved one. For others, it is the first holiday that they are having to share time with their children. And still for others, it is the holiday season that brings painful memories back to the surface each and every year. If this time of year is difficult for you, please know that this church family recognizes and respects that and we pray that in some way we can help lighten your load this year.

In all things, we strive to please God and serve Him. May that remain our focus throughout our time on this earth.

(I would also like to thank the Tuesday class for their incredible generosity and others who have provided for our family during this holiday season!)

--Scott Wright
