"Who is wise and understanding among you? By his good conduct let him show his works in the meekness of wisdom." -- James 3:13

There could be countless volumes written about the moral decline of our country and even our world at large. However, what good would those volumes do in actually contributing to the reclamation project? The book of James, a practical letter written to people wondering how to actively live out the Christian life, claims that it is our good conduct that will show other people true wisdom. It is not enough to simply voice concern, we must be a people of action.

In Ephesians 2:10, it is explained that mankind was created by God for the purpose of good works in Christ Jesus. Therefore, it stands to reason that our goal or task has not changed some two thousand years later. I am created in the image of God and He needs me to be a person who seeks to show the world the wisdom of God through my good conduct, good example, and my willingness to teach the gospel of His Son to those that I come in contact with.
